Hi
I'm the author.

I've made-

You know, there are 3 sides of a coin.

I normally consider myself to be neutral. but...

when public services refuse to answer questions when dealing with large sums of money.

Economic experts say that this type of business isn't viable.

LOLAF.
I have American investors $$$.
I'll survive this.

They have also a dangerously weak cyber security, putting their users at risk of hackers stepping the bikes during their rides.

Only users will take that up.
Nobody cares about cyber security until it hits their wallets.

Cities need to take action and demand safety for their citizens.

Experts say that these companies are clumsy.
Just like their Bike-Share predecessors, these scooter services cannot last based on these facts:

- The price of a new scooter is more than what it would earn in service.

Scooters last

< 28 days in Rough terrain.

- Cities adopting and implementing new regulations that cut sales.

Wow!
So perfect for Malmö!

Hello everyone!

Tonight, a person living here in the house was approached by an individual on an electric scooter out on the street who grabbed the person and tried to perform a robbery. The person managed to run away and is feeling well under the circumstances and got no physical injuries except for occasional bruising. A little later, the police received reports that someone in the area had a knife out with similar events and signs. So be careful out here! I don't want to scare you but be on your guard.

Have a good evening and take care of each other!

This is a nice flower field right?

WRONG!

Have you heard of the bike graveyard in China? These aren't Chinese bikes, these are app transportation companies who FAILED and sent the "trash" to China. They worked similarly to how those E-scooter companies work.

HEY!

PUT ME DOWN!!

You're not supposed to leave.

Don't leave without me!

My family is waiting for me!

MY FATHER WILL HEAR ABOUT THIS!!

Taxpayer money should not be going into the regulation of a private transportation service. Malmöstad introduced these scooters without proper investigations on how to regulate and keep civilians safe.

Malmö, we can do better.
